A bright, new, and truly inspirational look at the spiritual quest.

Entertaining, engaging and subtle, this book carries a serious underlying message. Author Jean-Claude Koven has chosen a humorous fictional character named Larry to make his point. Larry and his wise-cracking dog Zeus make their way to Joshua Tree National Park for what Larry thinks will be a relaxing holiday. Zeus, however, has other ideas. Yes, the dog talks. However, before you scoff and disregard this book, you should know that Zeus speaks with the wisdom of the ages. Larry begins a journey of spiritual awakening and true enlightenment with the help of Zeus and his unusual friends. Larry learns that the Earth and all of her inhabitants are depending on him to move them smoothly into the next dimension.

Author Jean-Claude Koven has studied with the Masters and lectured on six continents. He stimulates the hidden memories deep within and seeks to help realign this planet's inhabitants with their souls.

With bookshelves bulging at the seams with technical and often boring information on enlightenment, spiritual awakening, finding the Self, etc., this book is a refreshing change that not only covers most topics for the spiritual voyager, but does it in a most enjoyable format. The cover photograph is representative of the book's contents and most pleasing to the eye. Well written, informative and nicely presented -- this book is highly recommended.
